

BEHAVIORAL SENSIBILITIES

The Simplicity of Politeness and Good Manners

Ms. Bren Stringer, President

Ms. Bren Stringer is President and Founder of Behavioral Sensibilities/Manners by Bren, a company dedicated to improving Social Skills, Manners, Politeness, Conflict Avoidance and General Civilities. She is Founder and Executive Director of the Foundation for Behavioral Sensibilities, a non-profit organization. Bren is an internationalist who was educated in Europe and the United States, has traveled to and worked in more than twenty countries; she lived in France, Belgium and England, speaks fluent French and has studied several languages.

Whether domestic or international, affecting customers or internal relationships, she believe that the nuances of business and personal relationships and the scope of our behavior is a delicate and sensitive balance of attitudes, conventions, and formalities.

She believes that many conflicts, misconceptions and resentments could be avoided if more importance was placed on preventive maintenance through teaching manners, general civilities, nuances, attitudes and reactions to difficult situations.

Ms. Stringer was an expatriate for a decade and understands many nuances of life and different cultures. She states that it is not enough to have good intentions, that one must also learn the rules of proper behavior. Her corporate as well as personal friendships with many cultures have given her opportunities to learn a great deal: From the Asians she learned about honor, patience, and acceptance; the European's love of diplomacy and protocol has shown her a more civilized reaction to life; The Americans' zest for work, personal quality of life and flexibility have show her how to be more adaptable and efficient; the Latins have taught her more about dignity, an adherence to tradition, mixed with the joys of spontaneity and love of life.

She is a trained speaker and actress who uses her skills to add a lilt and depth to her training programs that delve into the core of human behavior to teach depth of integrity, fulfillment of self-esteem and good character that support positive actions.

Bren moved from Paris to Dallas eleven years ago and has lived between Dallas and New York City for the last eight years.

"Polish the rogue within"

6900 Skillman Street, Suite 416 • Dallas, Texas 75231-5880

214 . 342.9412 & 1 888.323.8765

mannersbybren@aol.com www.BehavioralSensibilities.com

Foundation for Behavioral Sensibilities